CITY REPORTS.

Report of the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department.

To His Honor the Mayor and City Government

In accordance with the requirements of the ordinance governing the fire department of this city, I have the honor to present my tenth annual report

The department now numbers ninety four men, viz One chief engineer, three assistants, eighty-five hosemen, fifteen ladder men one engineer of steamers, one fireman and three drivers

The apparatus of the department consists of three steam fire engines, four hose carriages hauled by hand and one by horses, one ladder truck hauled by horses, two hose carriages in reserve In this connection I would recommend a new boiler for one steamer, deeming it for the best interest of the department that all the steamers should be kept in good condition and always available for use

There are seventy-two hundred feet of hose in the department, four thousand feet of which is old and unreliable I would recommend the purchase of five hundred feet of cotton hose during the coming season

The houses are in a fair condition but not adequate to the needs of the department, as they were built for the use of hand engines and are not adapted to the present system

There are twenty-eight reservoirs, sixteen built of brick, twelve of wood, those built of brick are all in good condition, with the exception of one, located at the corner of Summer and Cedar streets, which has leaked ever since it was built, the wooden ones have all been kept in repair and are generally in good condition

There has been added to that very valuable auxiliary the Fire Alarm Telegraph system during the last municipal year, ten new boxes and one striker, making a total of twenty eight (28) boxes and four strikers in the city, which meets the demands for the present, in the city and suburbs

There have been twenty-eight calls on the department during the year, the smallest number since my connection with the department There have been eight fires with an estimated loss, amounting to $5,290 00, one fire in which the loss as yet has not been adjusted; nineteen calls in which there has been no loss, or none estimated The causes of the fires are as follows two caused by explosion of lamps, two by defective chimneys, one by lightning, one by furnace, and two unknown

The receipts are $16,735 00; Expenditures, $17,442 09, Balance overdrawn, $707 09.

I desire to say, that in the opinions presented by me in my last report, under the head of suggestions, I still adhere to believing that, if adopted, they would be for the best interest of the Department, and I would again call your attention to the matter, trusting it may receive your careful consideration; and, in addition and for the purpose of promoting the efficiency of the Department, feeling it would be a wise, economical and beneficial measure, I would recommend the appointment of such number of men as it may be deemed advisable, and to constitute what may be called a protective or salvage corps, to be equipped with rubber blankets, and such other articles as may be required, and supplied with a team to convey the same, whose duties shall be to attend all fires and protect the property This system as applied in most all large cities has proved to be a very valuable acquisition to the Department In concluding I desire to express my thanks to the members of the Department for the interest they have at all times manifested in the welfare of the Department and their devotion and uniform kindness shown during the year, and especially to His Honor, the Mayor City Government Board of Engineers, Chairman and Committee on Fire Department

Respectfully submitted,
O D MADDOX,
Chief Engineer

Report of City Physician

To the Honorable Mayor and City Council, Bangor

Gentlemen— I have the honor to submit the following report for the year ending March 15th 1887

I have received nineteen notices from the school agent, to investigate reported cases of diphtheria The children in these families were ordered out of school, and all necessary precautions taken to prevent the spread of the disease I found thirty one cases of diphtheria, fourteen resulting in death This death rate would have been much lower if all the mild cases had been reported Three cases of scarlet fever and three of chicken pox were also reported and disposed of in the same manner

Nearly all of the cases of diphtheria occurred in the poor and thickly settled parts of the town, and were due undoubtedly to bad surroundings They were all in the immediate vicinity of yards and outhouses poorly drained, and where the wells—as is generally the case in such a community—are full of impurity and never suitable for household purposes

Investigation places the fact beyond question, that infectious diseases arise from poor drainage (which means filth), privy vaults, and indirectly at least from wells Such conditions being the only requirement for the propagation and continuation of contagious diseases

At present the measles are prevailing to quite an extent among school children, mostly on the east side None of the cases were reported as they were largely without professional attendance, therefore no measures were taken to prevent spreading the disease As this is a very contagious disease occasionally resulting in death and breaking up our schools parents and teachers should be compelled to report the same to the proper authorities, that a quarantine may be established

The present method of treating contagious diseases established by city ordinance, though yet imperfect, is of great value and would be much more so if physicians would not ignore or neglect the work, and if they would report their cases earlier

It is almost impossible for them to occur in a neighborhood having good water, drainage, and plenty of sunlight This can be demonstrated by supplying every family in the crowded parts of the town (either at their own, or as would perhaps be necessary in a few cases, at the city's expense) with Holly water and public drainage This would of course abolish privy vaults and wells

If in this way even fifty lives could be saved annually is it not worthy our consideration?

Much credit is due the Health Officer, Mr John Goldthwait for his efforts in preventing the spread of diphtheria

One hundred and seventy four school children have been vaccinated

Report of Sewer Board

To the Municipal Officers of Bangor

In this our second annual report we again call your attention to the increased demand for sewerage caused by the introduction and extension of the Holly water system for wherever the Holly water is extended and used there must be sewerage or a nuisance and as the water system has been greatly extended during the past year there will consequently be the necessity of a large increase of appropriations for sewers the coming year for the health and comfort of the citizens require good sewerage therefore wherever the water goes the sewers must follow While the water system gives pure water the sewer system gives pure air In order to have these blessings the appropriations for sewerage for the next few years must be increased The increase should continue until the trunk sewers are completed

During the past year $16 657 62 have been laid out in constructing sewers, and $9 078 26 for constructing cesspools, chimneys and manholes and cleaning cesspools and flushing sewers, making the total expended $25,735 88 Amount collected for assessments and for entry fees into old sewers is $5,500 59

This shows that the amount collected for benefits is much less than the city is authorized by law to collect, as it has a right to collect three-fourths of the cost of the sewer In apportioning and reporting the assessed benefits we have endeavored to do justice towards each one assessed, and the assessments have in most every instance been established by your Board as reported by us, and have been accepted by the parties in all cases except of one sewer Some of the parties were dissatisfied with the amount of their assessments for constructing the Otis street sewer and arbitration was had, and to our disappointment their assessments were reduced We think that if the arbitrators had well understood the law and realized the benefits that the parties will derive from the sewer, that they would have sustained the assessments as established by your Board These reductions, and the construction of the sewer from Patten street to Walter street and in Walter street, which we did under your order after work had been laid out sufficient to exhaust the appropriations, and in constructing the piece of sewer in the open space in Meadow Brook to preserve and prevent from destruction the upper end of the sewer in that brook which had already been built, are the cause of the overdrawing in this department But for the building of this latter piece in Meadow Brook, that piece which had been built above would have been entirely destroyed this winter, and would have have had to have been built over. The piece we built was at an expense of $1,435 70

A large amount of work will be called for in this department next year A sewer has already been ordered to be built in Lincoln street, and petitions have been referred to us and surveys estimates and reports have been made in favor of constructing sewers on Sixth street, Cedar street, Broadway—upper end, George street, Park street, Railroad street and Thomas street. And petitions have been referred to us for sewers on Pearl street First street and Wiley street. No surveys or estimates have been made for these There are also petitions which have been referred to the Sewer Board for sewers on May street and Hammond street As improvements are being made and new residences constructed in the vicinity of Sanford street sewer it will be necessary the coming year to complete that sewer

This year sewers have been constructed in Hammond street which enters into a short piece of sewer constructed in Pier street Pier street sewer now empties into a swale which will soon become a nuisance unless that sewer is extended and as new houses are being built on said Pier street there will be a call for the extension of the sewer on that street the coming year

In our last annual report we called attention to the sewerage flowing into Kenduskeag stream and corrupting its waters We would again call your attention to this matter for this nuisance cannot be tolerated a great while longer The only way to remedy it is to construct a sewer from low water mark up through Exchange and Harlow streets and connect with Meadow Brook sewer in Curve street, and also a sewer commencing at low water mark up through Broad street and connect with the Hammond and Main street sewers

And we would recommend that the appropriations for the next year be made sufficiently large so that a beginning may be made on the Exchange street sewer and build it from low water mark up to Hancock street

We have had the book made showing a record of each sewer built prior to 1887 which was referred to in our last annual report The cost of this book was about $300 This book shows the name of each person who has entered and paid and those who have not paid and are liable to pay It is a great aid to the Sewer Board and it has already been the means of collecting much more than it cost

There is another consideration why liberal appropriations should be made in the sewer department which is that it does not cost more than half as much to keep the streets in repair in which there are sewers as it does those where there are no sewers Besides the streets where there are sewers in the spring of the year are free from honey pots and quagmires To illustrate take Hammond street from the bridge to Fifth street through which a sewer runs It is free from mud holes in the spring while from Fifth to Sixth street where there is no sewer in the springs at times it is muddy and almost impassable A sewer through Broad street would greatly reduce the expenses in keeping that street in repair

The construction of sewers gives employment to a great many laboring men who otherwise would be out of employment and gives us better streets and saves much expense in the street department and is conducive to the health and comfort of the citizens It is a department in which the City Council can well afford to be liberal in its appropriation for the money expended in the construction of sewers is about all distributed among the business men tax payers and citizens of Bangor

THURSDAY, MARCH 24, 1887.

The jury in the case of Cleary the alleged boodle alderman has disagreed Cleary's bail of $40,000 has been renewed pending another trial

It is reported that Judge Cooley, of Michigan, will be Chairman of the Inter-State Commission He is by all odds the ablest man on the board

The New York Legislature has passed the High License bill It has been asserted that Gov Hill would veto the bill if it reached him Now that he is to be brought face to face with the measure it remains to be seen what disposition he will make of it

The Gardiner Home Journal says "Bangor, like Gardiner, elected a young Republican for Mayor, and a right good fellow to Mayor Bragg has many acquaintances in Gardiner, our Mayor among them He will probably visit Gardiner in May, when doubtless there will be considerable interest to hear what the Mayor o' Gardiner says to the Mayor of Bangor

Anarchists go on whining about "the poverty stricken workingmen of America," and the true workingmen of the country go on piling up their earnings and making themselves comfortable homes The State savings banks of the State of New York alone have $482 486,730, money made up of small deposits Such facts talk louder and more to the point than the bellowing of men too lazy to work

The Democrats of Chicago evidently realize that they have a hard fight on their hands and therefore refuse to excuse Carter Harrison from further service Harrison was unanimously renominated as a candidate for Mayor last night This means a resort to the fine work in which Harrison's heelers are experts It will doubtless be a hot contest, but the Republicans have a clean ticket in the field and with proper effort can overthrow the corrupt ring now in control of the city There is certainly every incentive for the Republicans to make a thorough canvass and present advices indicate that they are preparing for it

An exchange remarks that the latest idea in Washington is to live without eating An alleged physician there claims to have discovered a fluid which enables one to fast indefinitely grow stronger daily, work without fatigue and sleep without rocking and yet it is not a drug There will doubtless be a great demand for this transcendent discovery among hotel proprietors and boarding house keepers In the family too, how much easier to procure bottles of a fluid enabling the household to exist without eating than to engage the procession of cooks that annually pass in review It would quite revolution iz the menage and housekeeping made easy would be the rule

A former resident of Maine now living in Florida writes us to discontinue sending him the DAILY WHIG AND COURIER, as he has not received more than two thirds of them since this Administration came in" This specific charge confirms the more sweeping complaint recently made in the columns of a Southern paper to the effect that the mail service has become so demoralized under the manipulation of Postmaster General Vilas that the people would be forced to resort to the express unless some improvement was made This is the result of what is now labeled reform in the civil service, which, literally translated means to turn out competent clerks to make places for incompetent partisans

According to a statement made by Commissioner Edgerton the Civil Service Commission has investigated some sixty complaints of violations of the law relating to the appointment of clerks in the Interior Department alone and has discovered that nine of the appointments were made in violation of the law Being asked what the Commission could do in regard to the nine clerks Commissioner Edgerton replied "We shall order them out and fill their places with persons who have passed the examination required by law We stop their pay by notifying the head of the department that the appointment was illegal and that ends it Should the head of the department fail to stop the clerk's pay upon such notification the officer who paid the money would become personally liable for the amount

The Democratic and Mugwump papers hasten to the defense of the Providence Journal and their comments are reproduced in the columns of that paper as affording a justification of its shameful course This sort of thing must soon open the eyes of the Rhode Island Republicans to the fact that they are sustaining a traitor in disguise When a so called Republican journal has to turn to the columns of Democratic organs and their allies for vindication it is pretty low down in the political scale If the Providence Journal of to-day feels that it is unable to follow the course laid down for it in the past when it had Senator Anthony at the helm, it should manfully assert its purpose to cut loose from its old moorings instead of stabbing the party in the back as it is now doing

Lawyer Shafer counsel for Cleary, the ex boodle Alderman, now on trial in New York, seemed to loose sight of his client's interests in his opening speech which was devoted to a denunciation of the press in general and the World in particular. He lost his head entirely and gave full sway to passions until summarily rebuked by Judge Barrett, who told him he had gone too far and must confine himself to the facts in the case At the adjournment of the Court he was seen by a reporter from another paper and let himself out again after this fashion

Don't make any mistake, you need not laugh As soon as this case is over you will hear of something much more exciting than this—I'll shoot that Jew or he'll shoot me I shan't assassinate him I'll warn him to be armed, but he will have to take my life or I'll take his By ——, I am in earnest! I don't care so much about it for myself, but his vile conduct prejudices my client I'll kill him or he will have to kill me, and don't you forget it"

Editor Pulitzer should at once secure a brace of revolvers, a bowie knife or two and put a razor in his boot in order to be prepared for the lively encounter in store for him, or better still, give counsel Shafer a handsome fee for his gratuitous advertisement of the World.

A Democratic organ remarks the point where n the Republican and Democratic policies differ "is protection versus revenue and we know which side the people are going to take" There is nothing strange in that. Everyone who watched the result of the elections last fall when so many free traders, including the free trade boss Morrison, himself, were left at home, can see that the people are going to stand for protection

The New York Tribune's Washington correspondent calls attention to a remarkable instance of Attorney General made law, emanating from the Pan-Electric statesman now at the head of the Department of Justice The act of Congress in regard to the pay of supervisors of elections says that each supervisor shall receive $5 for each day actually on duty, "not exceeding ten days" The supervisors in Fall River and New Bedford, Mass, served over five days in the last Congressional election, and their accounts properly certified by the United States Judge called for corresponding pay They are met by a ruling of the Attorney General denying their right to full pay in which he quotes a circular letter from the Department of Justice issued last October, saying that "it is not expected that supervisors will receive compensation for more than five days' service." The Attorney General recites that the five-day rule has been adhered to in the face of protests from supervisors who served a longer term than five days in Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland, Missouri, Virginia and California In effect the Attorney General repeals the act of Congress and substitutes herefor his own arbitrary will limiting the term for which supervisors can draw pay to one-half the time allowed by statute

All Alike

Democratic methods are much alike whether the scene of action is laid in Indiana or Maine During the late session of the Indiana Legislature we had an illustration of the high handed outrages to which the Democrats readily resort in order to gain a temporary advantage, and now the Biddeford Democracy introduced similar methods in a meeting of the City Council for the election of subordinate officers The Biddeford Journal of Tuesday says

Yesterday was inauguration day It was the inauguration of the fifth consecutive Ring city government of Biddeford and the inauguration of mob law in conducting the city's affairs. The descent from the economy and honesty of Republican control five years ago, has been little else than a downward plunge, and those who witnessed the disgraceful scenes enacted in the council chamber last evening can never doubt that the "lower deep" has been reached By rapid degrees the gang of corruptionists who manipulate the Biddeford Democracy have taken the conduct of affairs from the hands of honorable men and turned it over to a majority made up chiefly of doughfaces, hoodlums and ignoramuses—ignorant or careless of their duties and of the primary rules for conducting public bodies, defiant of law and the plain rights of all good citizens

The pitiable exhibition in the City Council room last evening not only confirms the foregoing but affords a swift indorsement of the "character" given the Democratic nominees by the Journal before election Upon a motion to go into joint convention to elect city officers, the discovery that the Democratic majority of one was absent, by reason of drunkenness—a charge openly preferred and not refuted—was made the excuse for turning the meeting over to a mob and thus preventing the transaction of the city's business This was one adorsement Another indorsement was the unheard of act of President Center, who after voting as a member of the Council on a motion to adjourn, and tying the vote, then voted a second time on the same motion, as President of the body, and declared the motion carried! Who but an ignoramus or a desperado would have thus put himself on record in a deliberative body?

But all men are liable to mistakes Parliamentary advice was kindly tendered the new presiding officer, but the honorable President of the Common Council knew better, he had made no mistake "You are adjourned, anyhow," said he, and this high functionary handed the control of the council chamber over to a mob of loafers and street gamins, who loaded the air with profanity and tobacco smoke, and the carpet with filthy expectorations

This is but an outline of a most inexcusable, disgraceful performance We commend it to the thoughtful attention of the decent Democrats of Biddeford, who, we are glad to say, did not aid nor abet this exhibition of hoodlumism If they have sufficient influence with the men they have elected to office—which we fear they have not—we trust they will so exercise it, before another meeting of the boards, as to prevent a repetition of such disreputable transactions, which are a disgrace to the good name of the city

Mr Beecher's Property at Auction

Arrangements have been made for the sale of Mr Beecher's books, engravings, etchings, paintings, rugs and bric-a brac at the rooms of the American Art Association next fall It is deemed desirable by his executors to dispose of them as soon as possible, but it will be impossible to properly catalogue them this spring. The sale will probable take place in November. Mr Beecher had about 10,000 volumes in his library, including a number of costly books of engravings and illustrated volumes He had no taste for rare books His was in the main a working library, chosen for his especial needs Among his etchings and engravings are many choice specimens including artist proofs of some notable subjects Rembrandt Durer, Rubens and other famous artists are represented Mr Beecher was accustomed to buy what pleased his taste He also had many valuable rings While he bought many costly gems which took his fancy from their richness of color, he gave away most of them, and those he left are probably not worth more than $2,000

Mr Beecher's farm, Boscobel, at Peekskill which is offered for sale, is valued at $100 000 It contains thirty-six acres and is all under a high state of cultivation, every sod of it having been thoroughly subsoiled On it there are fully 10,000 forest trees and shrubs, including specimens of all sorts which grow in this latitude Therein are also 2,000 fruit trees and grapevines which produce two or three tons of grapes The house cost $45,000 to build and there are extensive barns, greenhouses, stables, etc, and the old farmhouse Mr Beecher and his wife spent half of each year at Peekskill and usually had his sons and their families with him. Mr Beecher's estate includes his farm, library, pictures and life assurance of $25,000 The life assurance is left to Mrs. Beecher, and the residue to his three sons and daughter, Mrs. Scoville.

A PROMOTER OF INDUSTRY.

The man that insures his life values it, and can be expected to protect it Loving his life he also loves his liberty, and is not quick to commit an overt act that will deprive him of his freedom The man who insures his life must of necessity, be industrious, so that his premiums can be kept paid paid up and his policy not lapsed In fact, there can be no more potent promoter of industry and frugality than life insurance, and with these secured no nation can help but be prosperous Life insurance has another beneficial effect on society In that it reduces pauperism The poor man who, instead of squandering his money and on dying leaves his family to the charity of others, can now provide for them himself while living These are but few of the public advantages of life insurance, and it is not strange that it is daily growing stronger all over the world —Weekly Item

No More Bodies Yet Found.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 21. Work at the ruins of the Richmond Hotel was continued this morning. The largest part of the wall on the Main street side has been pulled down and but one story on the Eagle street side remains. No more bodies had been found at last accounts. Wm. Boyd was about forty years of age and has a wife in this city. He was a native of Portland and has been in the employ of the Company for several years.

The Commissioners of Prisons will send to the House this afternoon a report made in response to the legislative order in relation to the number of prisoners in the several prisons in the State and the number employed at remunerative labor; also as to the cost and earnings of each prison for the last fiscal year. The report shows that the number of persons held in all prisons and reformatories, excluding reformatory schools for minors, on Feb. 24th, 1887, was 5,199, consisting of 4,253 males and 646 females. Of this number 3,483 males and 141 females were employed in labor which produces cash returns. One hundred and thirty-one women were also employed on the piece price plan. The gross cost of these institutions for the year ending Sept. 30th, 1886, was $923,110; receipts for labor were $179,527; receipts from other sources $48,160; net cost $695,423.

THE CONTESTING YACHTS.

Was it or Not the Dauntless.

NEW YORK, March 23. According to the best calculations, if the report of steamer Rugia is true, the Dauntless was in the region of the icebergs when observed, and would in all probability experience much difficulty in dodging about these immense mountains of ice. She was about 672 miles east by north of where the British Prince reported her and about 328 miles to the south east of Cape Race. These figures place the Dauntless 1319 miles east of Sandy Hook last Friday. If she has met with no mishaps since, then she has probably about 560 miles more to sail before she reaches Roache's Point, her destination. There are many who are skeptical as to this vessel sighted being the Dauntless.

FROM WASHINGTON.

News About the Capital.

False Reports About Starving Indians.

WASHINGTON, March 23. Every few weeks the country is informed that the Tongue River Indians in Montana are starving to death. Reiteration of the report caused Commissioner Atkins to find out the facts. He has to-day received a despatch from Agent Upshaw, to the effect that no Indians under that agency have starved and they are drawing the customary rations.

President of the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

The Star, to-night, says on authority of a prominent Democrat, that Judge Cooley is to be President of the Inter-State Commission.

Secretary Manning's Successor.

It is learned on good authority that Secretary Manning's successor will not be appointed before April 1st, the date upon which Mr. Manning's resignation takes effect. The belief still prevails that Assistant Secretary Fairchild will receive the appointment.

NEW YORK.

A Bad Fellow Remanded for Trial.

NEW YORK, March 23. Peter J. Ingles, indicted for burglary, and also for shooting at two policemen, and who is believed by the Brooklyn police to be the murderer of Lyman S. Weeks, was taken to the Brooklyn police headquarters to-day and examined. Ingles claimed to be innocent. Nothing new was elicited. The two policemen still insist that he is the man who shot at them. The prisoner was remanded for trial.

Sale of the Stewart Art Collection.

The sale of the collection of works of art owned by A. T. Stewart commenced to-night, at Chickering Hall. Every seat in the house was filled with well known bankers, merchants and society women. It was a notable collection of people. The prices were fair, according to the statement of dealers who were present. There were a number of pictures which went at a sacrifice. The total sales for the night was $110,125. Mr. Kennedy, the purchaser, will send "Niagara Falls from the American Side" to the Edinburgh Museum.

The Thetis Off for Alaska.

United States steamer Thetis, the sealing vessel purchased by the Navy Department as an exploring steamer in search of Lieut. Greely, and which was the flag ship of the expedition, has been thoroughly equipped as a naval vessel and will sail to-morrow for duty in the Alaskan waters. She is in command of Lieut. William H. Emery, who commanded the Bear on the Greely expedition.

THE JURY DISAGREE.

The Boodler Cleary Again Placed Under $40,000 Bail.

NEW YORK, March 23. The jury in the case of ex-Alderman Cleary retired last night at 11.12 o'clock. This afternoon at two o'clock the jury sent in for certain documentary evidence, but Justice Barrett refused, referring them to the revision of the criminal code which requires in case of disagreement to have such information given in open court, before the counsel for both sides, and in cases of felony in the presence of the defendant.

The Jury Discharged

At 4.15 P. M. Cleary was brought into court. The jury entered a moment later and took their seats. Justice Barrett came in and ascended to the bench and the clerk called the roll. The usual questions were asked and Foreman Bachman replied: "No verdict has been agreed upon." "You are discharged," said Justice Barrett without a comment. After the jury had gone Mr. Shafer asked if it was the proper time to ask for a discharge of Cleary's bail. Judge Barrett responded grimly, "this is the proper time for the District Attorney to ask for its renewal." This motion was made and bail was fixed at the old figure, $40,000. The court then adjourned to Friday morning. Cleary and his counsel were warmly congratulated on the result by their friends Later he went to Justice Patterson, of the Supreme Court, and was admitted to bail in $40,000.

brought them deliverance and elevation, and now in my old age, after the many vicissitudes of my life, I look with pride upon the great transformation which the glorious events of recent years, the imperishable feeling of German unity and sincere love of fatherland have effected in Germany. Bismarck and the Ecclesiastic Bill.

BERLIN, March 23. The Oberhaus to-day in plenary session, began the discussion of the ecclesiastical bill. Prince Bismarck made a long speech in defense of the measure. He said that as regarded the question of religious orders the chief point to be considered was whether the Catholics needed the orders. It was certain that Catholics believed in the value of the orders, and their sentiments should be satisfied in harmony with the legislation of the country. The State naturally had an interest in the good training of priests. Such training they could acquire as well at seminaries as at universities. Government came from universities, not from seminaries. It was out of regard for the unity of the nation and because of the dangers threatening that unity that he initiated the present ecclesiastical bill, doing so with full recognition of his responsibility. Whether or not the bill would lead to the establishment of religious peace could not be made known. The leaders of the centre had placed themselves in opposition to the Pope. No less dangerous than the progressionists were the subversive tendencies of the lower clergy, in whose removal the Pope and the Emperor have an equal interest.

A large number of the hammock chairs manufactured by the firm, were hung around the room, and the heaps of sails piled around the walls made divans as luxurious as any of Oriental construction. Inspiring music was furnished by a violin in the hands of a skillful musician. After Years.

Several Rockland gentlemen were talking of old Knox county vessels the other day, and among others the Kate Sweetland was mentioned. This vessel was built in South Thomaston in 1853, James Sweetland, Charles McLoon, Jesse Sleeper, Larkin Snow, Richard Keating and John T. White, a New York gentleman, being the owners. She was a ship of 527 tons, and was commanded by Richard Keating. What finally became of the Kate Sweetland no one knew. It was known that she was sold to English parties, and her name changed to Mary Blades.

Last week, while Captain Otis Ingraham was overhauling some of his old papers, he found a discolored document, dated at Savannah, Jan 16, 1866, signed by the English consul, thanking Capt. Ingraham for his gallant and kindly conduct in rescuing and caring for the destitute crew of the wrecked ship Mary Blades, originally the Kate Sweetland. Capt. Ingraham was at that time in command of the steamer Helen Getty. With the letter is a clipping from a Savannah paper, extolling Capt. Ingraham's conduct in the highest terms.

An Ancient Hand-sled.

At the store of Messrs. Thompson & Kellogg may be seen a curiosity in the shape of a hand-sled, undoubtedly the oldest in the city, and probably one of the oldest in existence, which is still in use, performing the duties required of it with the same meekness and humility as in the days of old when Woodbine, the burglar, robbed our late esteemed fellow citizen, Jonathan Cochran, of what was then known as the Mutual Store, of which the grocery store of the above named firm is the lineal descendent. It was probably half a century ago when our former well known fellow citizen, Josiah C. Mitchell, Esq., then an apprentice in the cabinet making rooms of George W. Merrill, Esq., then, as now, furnishing our citizens with furniture, fashioned with his own hands and for his own amusement a hand-sled, and built it after the manner of the Deacon's wonderful one horse shay.

The whirligig of time, with its changes, transformed Mr. Mitchell to a grocery man, having charge of the old Mutual Store, then some forty years ago, and he took his sled and used it in winter in delivering goods and the number of barrels of flour hauled by it from the team in the street through the yard to the door is beyond computation. When the present proprietors came into possession of the store, the old sled, still sound and serviceable, was one of the fixtures that went with it, and to this day continues to be used in the same manner and does its work as faithfully and well as ever. What is a remarkable fact the same board which was put on it when built is in use to-day, somewhat ragged and worn but still serviceable. This is not written as an obituary, as the old sled seems good for many years yet, and when it does give out it will probably go all at once like the old shay referred to. The sled speaks well for the thoroughness with which Mr. Mitchell did his work.

The First Company of Volunteers.

The publishers of the new book now in press, entitled "Eastern Maine in the Rebellion, send us the following:

A short time ago the WHIG AND COURIER claimed for Bangor the high honor of raising the first company of volunteers that enlisted in the United States to suppress the rebellion of 1861. Believing this statement to be a true one, we have advertised to give—in the coming book, "Eastern Maine and the Rebellion,"—a history of this company and the men who composed it. This has brought to us so many counter claims and verbal statements, that we have made a thorough investigation, and feel absolutely sure that the WHIG was correct. A gentleman from Auburn, Me., claims the honor for his city, but we think the following will serve to show him his mistake:

Fort Sumpter was fired on at 4 o'clock in the morning, April 12th, 1861. At five o'clock in the afternoon, April 19th, just seven days and thirteen hours later, a company of 80 men had signed here in Bangor regular enlistment papers—just such ones as were signed by the State Militia after the act of April, 1851—had been examined by Dr. Mason and one other physician, and accepted, and Gov. Washburn had sent the following telegram here in answer to the question as to how they should be taken care of:

"Rendevous the troops. The State will pay."
(Signed) ISRAEL WASHBURN, JR.

That there may be no discussion about the dates, we wish to say that through the kindness of James Dunning, Esq., we are in possession of the original roll, signed by the men themselves, and opposite these names are the dates of their enlistment.

The Auburn gentleman says that some of his townsmen attended the extra session of the Legislature, and, as soon as it was decided to enroll volunteers, "took a team and drove in the night to Auburn and began to enlist men at once." This was good work, we admit, but as the Legislature was not called together until April 22d, three days after our company was completed, he will be obliged to yield the honor to Bangor. Until some one can present an original document bearing an earlier date, the Queen City of the Penobscot is entitled to the honors.

Decision at Law.

The following decision at law has been received by Charles F. Sweet, Esq., Clerk of the Eastern Law District:

PENOBSCOT CASE.

Samuel B. Hinckley vs. Daniel Hinckley and al.

Rescript—It is considered by the Court in this cause that, after laying aside the testimony of the orator, Samuel, who is not a competent witness in his own behalf, as the respondents are "made parties as heirs of a deceased party," the evidence shows that Mrs. Hinckley, Samuel's mother, at her death held the property, that Samuel had conveyed to her in her lifetime, in trust for his benefit free from loans or advances other than those charged to him on her books of account.

That the trust was personal and ended with her life, and that the orator, Samuel, is entitled to demand and receive from the respondents all the estate in their hands, or to which they have title, that came to them from that part of their mother's estate that she held in trust for Samuel.

Neither party recovers costs.

CELEBRATED
Pin Worm Elixir.
A GREAT DISCOVERY!
It is claimed to be the safest, most potent and most effectual remedy known for this child killing disease. As a cathartic vermifuge it has no equal. It expels all kinds of worms, and in fact all living creatures that infest the bowels of suffering humanity, are triumphantly expelled by this truly wonderful remedy. Testimony in its favor comes in from all sections where it is known. It not only effectually removes from the system these troublesome and disagreeable worms, but children who have been weak and puny for years, are at once improved and restored to health by its use. Being a mild and gentle laxative, it is a corrective of the greatest value. It is purely vegetable and cannot be beat. It has also expelled several lizards. One eight inches in length, is spotted, belongs to the water species and looks like a veritable young alligator. Fits caused by worms and indigestion.

The Last Song.

While raindrops beat against my window pane,
There fluttered to the sill a lonely bird,
Who sang the sweetest song I ever heard
From feathered throat. A glad triumphant strain
Seemed swelling, thrilling through the blithe refrain.
I stretched my hand to draw him close beside,
When with the last sweet note, the singer died,
And then I knew he sang to hide his pain,
Yet wondered much that song so gay and free,
Should swell the tiny breast, where lay concealed
The grievous hurt, my careful search revealed,
As this one which had covered agony.
Some, like the dying bird, sing blithe and gay
While hidden wounds, alas! sap life away.

CHAPTER V.

DREAMS AND FOOLISHNESS.

When John Niel left Bessie on the veranda at the approach of Frank Muller he had taken his gun, and, having whistled to the pointer dog Pontac, mounted his shooting pony and started out in quest of partridges. On the warm slopes of the hills round Wakkerstroom a large species of partridge is very abundant, especially in the patches of red grass in which they are sometimes clothed. It is a merry sound to hear these partridges calling from all directions just after day-break, and one to make the heart of every true sportsman rejoice exceedingly. On leaving the house John proceeded up the side of the hill behind it—his pony picking its way carefully between the stones, and the dog Pontac ranging about 200 or 300 yards off, for in this sort of country it is necessary to have a dog with a wide range. Presently John saw him stop under a mimosa thorn and suddenly stiffen out as if he had been petrified, and made the best of his way toward him. Pontac stood still for a few seconds, and then slowly and deliberately veered his head round, as though it worked on a hinge, to see if his master were coming. John knew his ways. Three times would that remarkable old dog look round thus, and if the gun had not then arrived he would top certainty run in and flush the birds. This was a rule that he never broke, for his patience had a fixed limit. On this occasion, however, John arrived before it was reached, and, jumping off his pony, cocked his gun and marched slowly up, full of happy expectation. On drew the dog, his eye cold and fixed, saliva dropping from his mouth, and his head and face, on which was frozen an extraordinary expression of instinctive ferocity, outstretched to their utmost limit.

He was right under the mimosa thorn now and up to his belly in warm, red grass. Where could the birds be? Whirr! and a great feathered shell seemed to have burst at his very feet. What a covey! twelve brace if there was a bird, and they had all been lying beak to beak in a space no bigger than a cartwheel. Up went John's gun and off too, a little sooner than it should have done.

"Missed him clean! Now then for the left barrel." Same result. There, we will draw a veil over the profanity that ensued. A minute later and it was all over, and John and Pontac were regarding each other with contempt and disgust.

"It was all you, you brute,' said John to Pontac. "I thought you were going to run in, and you hurried me."

"Ugh!" said Pontac to John, or, at least, he looked it. "Ugh! you disgusting bad shot. What is the good of pointing for you? It's enough to make a dog sick."

The covey—or rather the collection of old birds, for this kind of partridge sometimes "packs" just before the breeding season—had scattered all about the place, and it was not long before Pontac found some of them and this time John got one bird—and a beautiful great partridge he was, too, with yellow legs—and missed another. Again Pontac pointed, and a brace rose. Bang! down goes one; bang! with the other barrel. Caught him, by Jove, just as he topped the stone. Hullo! Pontac is still on the point. Slip in two more cartridges. Oh, a leash this time! bang! bang! and down came a brace of them—two brace of partridge without moving a yard.

Life has joys for all men, but it has, I verily believe, no joy to compare to the joy of the moderate shot and earnest sportsman when he has just killed half a dozen driven partridges without a miss, or ten rocketing pheasants with eleven cartridges, or, better still, a couple of woodcock right and left.

By this time he was right across the mountain top and on the brink of the most remarkable chasm he had ever seen. The place was known as Lion's Kloof, or Leuw Kloof in Dutch, because three lions had once been penned up by a party of Boers and shot there. The chasm or gorge was between a quarter and half a mile long, about 600 feet in width and 150 to 180 feet deep. About 100 paces from the near end of the gorge, some ninety or more feet in height, stood the most remarkable of these mighty pillars, to which the remains at Stonehenge are but toys. It was formed of seven huge bowlders, the largest, that at the bottom, about the size of a moderate cottage, and the smallest, that at the top, perhaps some eight or ten feet in diameter. These bowlders were rounded like a cricket ball—evidently through the action of water—and yet the hand of nature had contrived to balance them, each one smaller than that beneath, the one upon the other, and to keep them so. But this was not always the case. For instance, a very similar mass that had risen on the near side of the perfect pillar had fallen, all except the two bottom stones, and the bowlders that went to form it lay scattered about like monstrous petrified cannon balls. One of these had split in two, and seated on it John discovered none other than Jess Croft, apparently engaged in sketching, looking very small and far off at the bottom of that vast chasm.

John got off his shooting pony and looking about him perceived that it was possible to descend by following the course of the stream and clambering down the natural steps it had cut in the rocky bed. Throwing the reins over the pony's head, and leaving him with the dog Pontac to stand and look about him as South African shooting ponies are accustomed to do, he put down his gun and game and proceeded to descend. As he drew near the bottom of the gorge he saw that near the borders of the stream, wherever the soil was moist, grew thousands upon thousands of white arum lilies, "pig lilies" they call them there, just now in full bloom. He had noticed these lilies from above, but there they and, owing to the distance, looked so small that he had taken them for everlastings or anemones. He could not see Jess now, for she was hidden by a bush that grows by the banks of the streams in South Africa in low lying land, and which at certain seasons of the year is literally covered with masses of the most gorgeous scarlet bloom. His footsteps fell very softly on the moss and flowers, and when he got round the glorious looking bush it was evident that she had not heard him, for she was asleep. Her hat was off, but the bush shaded her, and her head had fallen forward over her sketching block and rested on her hand. A ray of light that came through the bush played upon her curling brown hair and threw warm shadows on her white face and the white wrist and hand on which it rested.

John stood opposite to her and looked at her, and the old curiosity to understand this feminine enigma took possession of him. Many a man before him has been the victim of a like desire, and lived to regret that he did not leave it ungratified. It is not well to try to lift the curtain of the unseen; it is not well to call to heaven to show its glory, or to hell to give us touch and knowledge of its yawning fires. Knowledge comes soon enough; many of us will say that knowledge has come too soon, and left us desolate. There is no bitterness like the bitterness of wisdom; so cried the great Koholeth, and so hath cried many a son of man following blindly in his path. Let us be thankful for the dark places of the earth—places where we may find rest and shadow, and the heavy sweetness of the night. Seek not after mysteries, O son of man; be content with the practical and the proved and the broad light of the day; peep not, mutter not the words of awakening. Understand her who would be understood and is comprehensible to those who run, and for the others let them be, lest your fate should be as the fate of Eve, and as the fate of Lucifer, star of the morning. For here and there is a human heart from which it is not wise to draw the veil—a heart in which many things slumber as undreamed dreams in the brain of the sleeper. Draw not the veil, whisper not the word of life in the silence where all things sleep, lest in that kindling breath of love and pain dim shapes arise, take form, and fright thee.

A minute or so might have been passed when suddenly, and with a little start, Jess opened her great eyes, on which the shadow of darkness lay, and gazed at him.

"Oh!" she said, with a little tremor, "is it you or is it my dream?"

"Don't be afraid," he answered, cheerily, "it is I—in the flesh."

She covered her face with her hand for a moment, and then withdrew it, and he noticed that her eyes had changed curiously in that moment. They were still large and beautiful as they always were, but there was a change. Just now they had seemed as though her soul were looking through them. Doubtless it was because the pupils were enlarged by sleep.

"IS IT YOU, OR IS IT MY DREAM?"

"Your dream! What dream?" he asked, laughing.

"Never mind," she answered, in a quiet sort of way that excited his curiosity more than ever; "dreams are foolishness."

BULLETIN NO. 17.

Samples of clam shells, whole and ground to different degrees of fineness, were furnished to the Station some time since, by Hon. Z. A. Gilbert, which were obtained through the kindness of the manufacturers, the Damariscotta Shell & Fertilizer Co.

It is not known to what extent this material is offered to farmers for use as a fertilizer, but it is assumed that the composition of all classes of substances that are in the market under the head of fertilizing material, is a matter of public interest.

The character of the four samples was as follows:

Station No.
184. Whole shells.
185. Shells broken in coarse pieces.
186. Shells ground quite fine.
187. Shells ground very fine.

	184.	185.	186.	187.
Carbonate of Lime,	96.59	96.09	91.36	93.09
Sulphate of Lime (hydrated)	1.11	.39	1.90	1.47
Phosphoric Acid,	trace	trace	trace	trace
Oxide of Iron,	"	"	"	"
Magnesia,	"	"	"	"
Organic Matter,	1.69	1.07	1.33	1.14
Insoluble Material (silica, etc.)	.40	.34	3.02	1.98
Water,	.27	.19	.51	.88

The chief ingredient of clam shells, as these and many other analyses show, is carbonate of lime, and they do not contain an appreciable amount of any of the more costly ingredients of plant food. Like lime, these shells are not a fertilizer in the sense that barn manure or a superphosphate is, but their effect would be indirect. In fact their effect, when finely ground, would be similar to that of lime, only less vigorous. Fifty-six pounds of well burned lime would add to the soil all that is of value in a hundred pounds of clam shells, and would, when thoroughly air slaked, have an equal or greater effect on crop production.

In the Report of the Station for 1885–6, an analyses of Bowker's Fine Ground Bone is recorded on page 28, and no money valuation is given, the reason being that the bone had been treated with acid and consequently had a somewhat greater value than would be represented by the usual valuation of bone.

As some seem to suspect that the bone was not valued because of inferior quality, it is due to the manufacturers to state that the ordinary valuation would be $34.00. This valuation is probably somewhat larger than it would have been had not the action of the acid improved the mechanical condition of the bone.

FITS!
When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again, I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you. Address Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl St. New York.

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and number. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons leaving their address at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Collections are made morning, noon and evening in season for important mails.

Holidays the Carrier's Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 8½ to 9½ A. M., and from 8 to 8½ P. M. Sundays from 8½ to 9½ A. M.

Any irregularities in the Carrier's department should be reported to the office.

IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

Messenger boys are constantly in attendance to deliver letters with immediate delivery stamps, on arrival of all mails, and for local letters from 6 A. M. to 8.30 P. M., at which hour the office is closed. Persons depositing city letters will please pass them into the general delivery.

Letters arriving from West Sunday morning are delivered on arrival.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, (samples of which may be seen at the Cashier's window) when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if unclaimed within thirty days or less, written or printed, with the writers name, post office and State, across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.

The public are earnestly recommended to procure Stamped envelopes with printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus endorsed, if not delivered to the person addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

Stamps cut from Stamped Envelopes cannot be used to prepay postage. The use of such Stamps is punishable by a fine of fifty dollars.

Stamped Envelopes, spoiled in directing, are redeemed at this office.
